A Meaningful – if not Happy – Hanukkah

The most important book that I read this year was not an explicitly Jewish book, it was Between the World and Me by The Atlantic columnist, Ta-Nehisi Coates. This book was the 2015 recipient of the National Book Award, and though there were many excellent explicitly Jewish books published this year, Between the World and Me was the most important book I personally read this past year.

This book is one-part memoir, and one-part letter to his son. It traces the life of Coates as he grew up in Baltimore, graduated from Howard University, and ultimately became a writer and columnist in New York City.

Addressed to his son, Coates communicates the reality of being an African American Male in twenty-first century America in the shadow of the killings of Prince Jones, Michael Brown, and so many others.

One of the greatest gifts that the Torah gave to America is the idea of the infinite worth of every human being. This is what it means when the Torah writes that humanity was created in the image of the Divine. However, what Coates traces is the very real way that African American bodies did not come to these shores with infinite worth – but very finite, limited worth. This country was founded on the premise that African American bodies had specific monetary value because of the history of the African slave trade where human beings were considered property. The violence perpetrated against African American bodies over the centuries has its roots in this original sin of treating humans as property, and assigning limited value to human life which Jewish tradition teaches is inherently limitless.

On one hand, this book is instrumental for Jews to read, because we have an obligation to view the world through empathy and understanding. Also, because we are both part of – and not part of – the white privilege that Coates describes. On one hand, most American Jews have white skin and enjoy the privilege that Coates describes. However, on the other hand, as in a piece written in the Washington Post by Rabbi Gil Steinlauf this past fall, “we must teach our children that we are, in fact, not white, but simply Jewish.” By both being inside and outside of this racial paradigm, we recognize the imperative that our Jewish community has to fight against racism, and the delicacy in how we exist within it.

The central mitzvah of Hanukkah is to bring light to the places that are dark. In order to do this, we also need to both reflect on our own values and see what we are doing to bring a little light. Between the World and Me is not a book that will necessarily bring a smile to your face, but it will help us see the world differently, and hopefully give us ways to think about how we either bring light or perpetuate darkness.

Parashat Hashavuah Group

Parashat Hashavuah is an ongoing, monthly program that takes place on every third Shabbat of the month at 9 am in the Board Room. The goal of this program is to engage its participants in a stimulating discussion of the Weekly Torah Portion in a friendly atmosphere, where the difference of opinions is respected, and questions of Lathrop and Gage. Future classes will meet on January 13, February 10, March 9, April 13 and May 11. For more information or to RSVP, contact the CBS office at 913-647-7279.

So What Is the True Meaning of Hanukkah?

Author Hilary Leila Krieger wrote the following in the New York Times a few years back. Its message is timely, and so here is a small excerpt from her article:

When my brother was in kindergarten, where he was the only Jewish student, a parent, organizing enrichment activities, asked my mother to tell the class the story of Hanukkah. My mother obligingly brought in a picture book and began to read about foreign conquerors that were not letting Jews in ancient Israel worship freely, even defiling their temple, until a scrappy group led by the Maccabee family overthrew one of the most powerful armies in the world and won their liberty.

The woman was horrified. The Hanukkah story, she interrupted, was not about war. It was about the miracle of an oil lamp that burned for eight days without replenishing. She urged my mother to close the book. My mother refused.

The woman wasn't alone. Many Americans, Jews as well as Christians, think that the legend of the long-lasting oil is the root of Hanukkah's commemoration. And perhaps that mistake is no surprise, given that for many, the holiday has morphed into "Christmas for Jews", echoing the message of peace on earth accompanied by gift giving. In doing so, the holiday's own message of Jewish survival and faith has been diluted.

Talmudic teachers of long ago felt that less emphasis should be placed on the horrors of war; to deflect that dark time in history. Celebrating the burning of the oil for eight days became a vehicle for change. A bleak time became one of light, and that light offered a sense of renewal and hope.

So how do we, in 2015, change the perception of Hanukkah? Should a stronger emphasis be placed on standing up for one's beliefs when re-telling the Hanukkah story? We know that war is never the best way to respond to hatred, but education can eventually be the light that stops war. So no matter how you perceive Hanukkah, or how you choose to re-tell the story, I send to you the light of peace, good health and happiness.

Thank you for your generosity in making this year's High Holiday Appeal the most successful in the history of CBS. We received pledges totaling $105,459, with a few additional pledges anticipated, far surpassing last year's record collection of $94,993. There were several remarkable achievements this year: 37 families who had not given in prior years made pledges; all Board members and nearly all Past Presidents and Jewish staff members participated; and although not expected to do so 60% of the Pillars of the Congregation (those paying above the standard dues schedule) pledged an average of $611 per family. Thank you again for thinking of CBS. This will go far toward helping us achieve a balanced budget again this year.

Volunteer Shabbat on January 9

Volunteer Shabbat honoring all of our wonderful congregational volunteers will be held on Shabbat morning, January 9. At that time, the Arthur Brand Young Leadership Award will be presented to Victor Wishna and the Kovod Award will be presented to Hanan Hammer. Please plan on attending to honor our volunteers. More details will follow in the January Scroll.

Banishing Bullying Behavior Project

The SH Banishing Bullying Behavior Project, founded and organized by Carol Yarmo several years ago, is a work in progress. The most exciting news is we have gained enough visibility for major organizations to come to us inviting us to volunteer in their programs to address the problem of bullying behavior. Aletha Simon and Joan Jacobson have met with Larry Lewis, Director of Volunteers for the Boys and Girls Clubs and his staff to develop a program for their children. We are continuing to explore additional venues to work with Boys and Girls Clubs.

Blanche Sosland was invited to meet with Dr. Martha Gershun, Director of Jackson County CASA and Dr. Joy Koesten, a Board Member, to discuss many areas for our BBB participants to collaborate with CASA and the following organizations: Operation Breakthrough, Children's Place, Head Start and Midwest Foster Care and Adoptive Association.

Our participants will conduct training sessions for CASA volunteers, the first to be on December 8 by Joan Jacobson. Although conducted by Jackson County CASA, volunteers from Johnson and Wyandotte counties are invited to participate. For those interested in working with children one-on-one, there will be opportunities to read to young children and give them

PrayerWorks

Sisterhood PrayerWorks will hold sessions at Village Shalom on alternate months throughout the year starting January 2016. The other months will be at CBS. PrayerWorks will continue to meet on the 4th Wednesday of the month from 10-11:30 am. Starting in January PrayerWorks will meet at Village Shalom, and in February at CBS.

PrayerWorks was started in 1997 and has received awards from Women's League for Conservative Judaism, Sisterhood and Neshei Chabad. The sessions are open to the community. Scientists have agreed collective prayer benefits the person praying, the person being prayed for, and the community at large. Rickie Haith, facilitator, has conducted sessions in other parts of the country, and PrayerWorks has been used as a model for other sisterhoods. For information or to leave a name for one who needs healing call Rickie Haith, 913-341-8707. All names stay on the list a minimum of 3 months unless notified.

much needed individual attention. Two recent presentations addressed workplace bullying: the first was two three-hour workshops sponsored by the Collective Learning Committee of Johnson County attended by 120 people as well as the Second Annual Workplace Bullying Panel discussion sponsored by the Central Exchange.

We can use many more board members and Sisterhood members and members of the Congregation to work with children and adults to carry out our mission to banish bullying behavior. For more information contact Blanche Sosland at 913-488-1116 or by email: blanche@soslandphoto.com or any member of the Sisterhood Banishing Bullying Behavior Project.

Confirmation Class Trip

Hanukkah is nearly here, Thanksgiving is behind us, and believe it or not, I'm already planning for Purim and Pesach! But the really big item on my agenda is the Confirmation Class trip.

Each year our tenth grade students participate in an intensive program with Rabbi Glickman on Sundays, where they discuss more sensitive and deeper concepts than they have previously in their Jewish studies, either at HBHA or at PRS. The Confirmation Class is for ALL of CBS's tenth grade students, regardless of where they attend school.

In class on Sundays, the students learn about, question and discuss issues that impact them as they are facing greater autonomy than ever before. Most of them are new drivers, and in a year's time, they will be considering which colleges they might attend. In Rabbi Glickman's class, they struggle together with issues about intimate relationships, how to understand and then represent Israel to their friends, what Judaism has to say about substance abuse, or what it means to keep kosher or how to set up a Jewish dorm room, just to name a few examples.

On December 20, the class will leave Kansas City on a five-day trip to New York City with me. Many people have asked me what the trip is for, what it is about, and why we do it at all. On one level, it's a trip to New York City - what more needs to be said? While there is an aspect of vacation involved, however (of course we'll ride the subway, see a Broadway show, eat Kosher deli and visit the Empire State building), New York City is infused not only with the modern Jewish flavor of Jerry Seinfeld; New York's Jewishness dates back to the founding of the city. We will be visiting sites in New York where we'll learn about the beginnings of Jewish life in America. It is one of the high points of my year, and I know our students will never forget it.

If you would like to help support our programming and possibly help defray the cost of this or future trips, I would love to speak with you! Please feel free to call or email me at hazzantby@bethshalomkc.org.

Miss Judy's Guide to a Meaningful Hanukkah

Hanukkah is the favorite holiday for almost every Jewish child. Finding a balance of gift giving to your kids and grandkids while teaching kindness and thoughtfulness of others, as well as gratitude for what we are blessed with, is every parent's/grandparent's challenge! Eating latkes and playing dreidel should be a part of each night's celebration. Below are some suggestions for a meaningful Hanukkah:

Night 1: Make the first night of Hanukkah the great gift night. Give your kids their gifts from you, all the aunts and uncles etc.

For the next 7 nights, teach your child how to be grateful for what they have as well as thoughtful of those who have less than they have.

Night 2: Sit down with your kids and count up all the tzedakah they have collected over the year. If you have not collected tzedakah all year, everyone can give a portion of their piggy banks to a charity of choice. Divide up your tzedakah into piles for each agency you want to give to. Here are some ideas, and you can think of so many needy deserving agencies: Jewish Family Services,

D'var Torah, Part Two

(Last month Emma Shapiro talked about her experiences in Eastern Europe.) The first Shabbat we spent in Jerusalem is something I will never forget because there truly is nothing like it. The whole city essentially shuts down and you pass so many people walking to their respective services. I don't know how many minyanim are out there, but it is definitely a lot. Most people in my group chose to go to the larger synagogues, but I went with one of my staff and a few other kids to what was called Raz's Minyan. It is held in the basement of what I think was a day school and could not have had more than thirty people. They were Modern Orthodox and had a mehitzah down the middle. Let me just say how thankful I am that I have grown up at a synagogue where I can lead, read torah, and stand up here and give a d'var torah. At some of the synagogues I attended I was forced to sit at the second level with bars in front of me. I could barely see or hear what the men were doing below. I really enjoyed Raz's Minyan because it reminded me a lot of the Library Minyan. There were kids running around in and outside of the service, occasionally participating- like I did when I was younger. There were some prayers where everyone would stand up and dance around together- something I definitely think should be incorporated here at the Library Minyan.

My favorite prayer moments are when we had a chance to pray within nature. One night we slept at the Bedouin tents and Harvesters, Safehome, Synergy Services, Jewish Federation, Israel Funds, Wayside Waifs, Ronald McDonald House, Toys for Tots or Big Brothers and Sisters.

Night 3: Get into your jammies and watch great movies with your kids and snuggle.

Night 4: Bake cookies or decorate cupcakes for a soup kitchen. Make peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for the homeless. You may want to call some of the shelters in advance to see what they can use.

Night 5: Go through your child's closet with them and find gently worn clothes they have outgrown as well as gently used toys and donate them to Operation Breakthrough, Safe Home or Synergy Services.

Night 6: Let your kids make your dinner tonight and clean up the best they can!

Night 7: Hanukkah is early this year. Call JFS, Synergy Services or Safe Home and adopt a family for the holidays. They have lists of ages of kids and needs of the family. On the 7th Night of Hanukkah have your kids help assemble the gifts and wrap them for the adopted family.

Night 8: Go see a movie you all want to see! Happy Hanukkah!

then woke up at 4 am to climb Masada. We made it up before sunrise, and I sat on the edge with my siddur watching the sun rise and thanking God for the view. Another night we slept in the desert on the ground with nothing but a sleeping bag. After getting about 4 hours of sleep they woke us up to hike before the sun rose. Although I complained for the entirety of the hike, the view was completely worth it, and it was one of my best silent Amidahs.

Not everything revolved around prayer though. We rode camels and donkeys in the Negev and hiked so many different paths and historically significant mountains. I got to float in the Dead Sea, which is much smellier and hotter than I anticipated. I snorkeled in the Red Sea with all kinds of beautiful fish! I learned about the history of Jerusalem, and I got to put my own note in the Western Wall while praying there. I tried my first falafel at Machne Yehudah and shwarma in the Jewish Quarter. I repelled down a cliff at Mitzpe Ramon, and I got to see the graves of and pay respects to some of the most important leaders in Israeli history. I am so thankful for USY and all it has done to make me the person I am today and for giving me one of the most meaningful summers. I immediately felt a connection to the state. I am counting down the days until I can go back. I can't get enough of talking about my trip and I can't stop smiling when I do so. Please don't hesitate to talk to me about it.

Of Blessed Memory

We express condolences to our Beth Shalom Members, their Families and Friends.

Summer Camp

Each year CBS has many students attending Jewish summer camp programs. We know our students develop on many levels through these excellent programs. A positive camp experience can have a long term and meaningful impact on a child. Need-based scholarship forms for approved camp programs are available on the CBS website.

The application must be completed in full and returned to the PRS office to Jill Goldstein (with a current tax return form) by February 12. The maximum amount for scholarships is $500, and the awards will be finalized by the end of March.

The Sanford M. Dunn Scholarship Fund for Study in Israel

Applications are now being accepted for the Sanford M. Dunn Scholarship for study in Israel. Created in 1988 in memory of Sanford M. Dunn by his wife Patsy and children Daniel and Debbie, the scholarship is awarded on the basis of merit, not financial need, demonstrated by:

- A record of academic achievement.
- A bona fide proposal for study in Israel, as part of an established program or as an individual or original project.
- References from teachers, rabbis or similarly qualified individuals.
- Or any combination of the above.

Age of applicants is not a factor, and while they need not be affiliated with the Synagogue, first preference will be given to meritorious applicants from CBS.

To apply: Submit the above documents to substantiate your qualifications. These documents must be received by the Beth Shalom Scholarship Committee no later than February 12, in care of the Beth Shalom Religious School Office at 14200 Lamar Ave, Overland Park, Kansas 66223. Additional guidelines for application can be obtained from the CBS Administrative Office or found on the CBS website: www.bethshalomkc.org.

Basil Salmon

Ingredients:

- 4 fillets of salmon (can be cut up lengthwise or crosswise)
- 1 cup chopped fresh basil
- 1/2 cup sun dried tomatoes, whole or cut up any style
- 1 cup sliced white mushrooms (optional)
- 1/2 cup extra virgin olive oil
- 2 garlic cloves, sliced or grated (grated is better)
- 1/2 tsp black pepper
- 2 tsp salt

Directions:

Preheat oven to 450°. Place fish in bottom of pan and sprinkle with salt. Mix the rest of the ingredients in a separate bowl and pour over fish. Cover and bake for 20 minutes.

*This recipe works great with Tilapia or Flounder (bake 5 minutes less if using these fish).
