Supper Club for 20s/30s

BY RABBI TALIA KAPLAN

A month after the launch of Beth Shalom's new sub-community for people in their 20s and 30s, referred to as "Supper Club," a headline in Business Insider read, "Supper clubs having a renaissance as Gen Z shuns nights on the town." Even before it was making the news, a handful of our congregants in their 20s and 30s had picked up on an unspoken commonality among their peers: many younger people want to be in community in relational and comfortable ways, not primarily revolving around happy hours. Yes, we sometimes have a "night on the town," and many of our events include alcohol, yet the younger Millennial and Gen Z members of Supper Club have also spent the past year building community in ways such as discussing Jewish texts at a congregant's home in Waldo, crafting while enjoying soup and homemade bread in Brookside, and planning outings to community partners like the White Theatre and the Mitzvah Garden. Though the venue and activity differ, the goal is the same: bring Jewish young adults – members and not, many without kids but a few beginning the parenthood journey, solo and partnered – together to do an activity together that takes off the pressure to make small talk and deepens substantive relationships.

In a similar attempt to meet people where they are, these events are publicized through an app called "Partiful." If you or someone you know is interested in learning more, email co-chairs Sari Berger (sarilberger@proton.me) and Addie Cutler (cutler.addie@gmail.com).

A vibrant purple poster for a Purim event. It features a large white Star of David at the top center, surrounded by orange and yellow jagged shapes resembling fireworks or confetti. Below the star, the text "Jewish Experiences" is written in small white letters, followed by "a Collaboration of Jewish Federation and The J". The main title "PURIM EXTRAVAGANZA!" is in large, bold, white letters with a yellow outline. Below the title, it says "A COMMUNITY CARNIVAL EVENT" in white letters on a yellow background. To the right, the date and time "MARCH 1 * 2-5 P.M." are written in large white letters, followed by "at The Jewish Community Campus" in smaller white letters. At the bottom, there is a list of participating sponsors and special thanks in small white text. The background is decorated with various colorful stars and geometric shapes.

Our Connection to Israel

BY HAZZAN TAHL BEN-YEHUDA

Every year the adult students in the Sisterhood-supported Sarah Peltzman Adult Education class share ideas of what they would like to learn. This year, students asked to learn about Israel and how and why we are connected to Israel. With greater levels of hatred toward Israel in the press and in communities around the world than ever, this topic is timely and important.

I share here the foundation of this class in the hopes that you will feel rooted, renewed and confident in your meaningful connection with our ancient and modern homeland, regardless of antisemitism, pressure and bad press that Israel is getting today.

The Torah begins with the story of God creating the entire world and everything within it. Rashi, the prolific 11th century French commentator, asks – why does the Torah begin here? Why doesn't it begin, rather, with God's relationship with the Israelite people, since the Torah chronicles our relationship with and responsibilities to God? Rashi immediately answers the question – The Torah begins thus so we will understand that, in the words of the psalmist, the world and all within it belong to God. Therefore, God has the right to "give" any part of God's creation to anyone.

So when God promises a piece of land to Avraham and his offspring forever, and reiterates that promise to Isaac, to Jacob, to Moshe, to Joshua, and later to the prophets to repeat to the Israelites, God and God alone has that right to do so. And when God tells Moshe that God will exile us from that land when we stray from God's mitzvot, and that God will return us to that land and punish the countries who exiled us, we believe. And biblical history proved this out over and over again.

While one might argue that the Torah is not a history book, ancient Persian, Egyptian and Assyrian writings support many accounts of events in the later books of the Tanakh. Throughout the Tanakh, we learn about times when we strayed and thus suffered tremendous losses, including being expelled from the land, and also that we turned back toward God's path and returned to our homeland.

And the punchline is that the Jewish People, as small as we are, can historically trace our communal memory back to our exile from that homeland. We have never questioned who we are as a people and where we came from. We have brought our holy story, our sacred texts, with us everywhere we have lived, and our liturgy has developed with the echoes of that shared history and under the influence of our sacred texts. We KNOW that this is our story, and therefore, we KNOW that we are one people, one family, united by that story, by that history, by all of the texts and experiences that are ours. What unites us as a people is our relationship with our God, in our Land, and in one language – which has always been Hebrew even when we did not speak it.

How You Can Help Us Update the Preschool Playground

BY LISA PORTER REEVES

DIRECTOR OF EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION

For more than twenty years, our Preschool playground has been a place of laughter, learning, friendship, and Jewish values in action. It is where children learn to take risks, build confidence, resolve conflicts, and experience joy through movement and play. Today, however, that space is in urgent need of renewal.

Our current playground is showing its age, both in safety and design, and no longer reflects our commitment to inclusion. Children of varying physical, sensory, and developmental abilities deserve a play space where everyone can participate fully, safely, and with dignity. We believe our playground should reflect the values we teach inside our classrooms: b'tzelem Elohim—that every child is created in the image of God.

We are launching a major fundraising campaign to completely reimagine our outdoor play space. This project will allow us to replace aging equipment and surfaces with modern, safe, and accessible structures designed for children of all abilities. The result will be a vibrant, inclusive playground that supports physical development, social-emotional learning, and imaginative play for generations of children to come.

An updated playground is more than new equipment—it is an investment in our community's future. It will serve hundreds of children and families each year and stand as a visible statement of our synagogue's commitment to education, inclusion, and caring for one another.

We invite you to partner with us in this important effort. Consider joining us on March 7, 2026, in Goldsmith Hall as we kick off our fundraising efforts with "Recess Revival," an Adults Only Trivia Night and Auction. This promises to be an unforgettable evening filled with nostalgia and fun. Single tickets and full tables can be purchased in Shul Cloud. Watch for additional information coming soon.

Donors who pledge at designated levels will have the opportunity to be recognized on the new playground or on our Preschool donor wall, honoring your generosity and commitment to Jewish education and inclusive community building. Your support, whether as an individual or corporate partner, will make a meaningful and lasting impact. Together, we can create a play space where every child feels welcome, capable, and celebrated.

Thank you for considering a gift to this transformative project. I would be honored to speak with you further about naming opportunities, recognition levels, or ways to become involved.

With gratitude,
Lisa

Mazel Tov to Our Bar Mitzvah

Samuel Kerschner - February 28

Samuel is the son of Jason and Shayna Kerschner of Olathe, KS, and the grandson of Patti Kroll of Overland Park, KS, and Lester and Lynn Kerschner of Lenexa, KS. He is a student at Oregon Trail Middle School. Samuel is a creative and imaginative young man, Samuel loves making art and building intricate Lego sets. He also enjoys video games and watching professional wrestling. When he isn't creating something new or exploring his favorite hobbies, you can often find him in the pool working to improve his stroke technique or spending time with his family playing games. For his Mitzvah project, Samuel is focusing on supporting animals in local shelters. He is currently choosing which shelter he will partner with, with the goal of helping through various types of donations.
